Expressive Path Receives $10,000 Donation from Ambler Savings Bank to Continue Art Programming

Ambler, Pennsylvania — Expressive Path recently accepted a $10,000 donation from Ambler Savings Bank to help continue their art education programming. Based in Norristown, the non-profit provides creative art and music workshops to teens between the ages of 12 and 19. The donation, made through the Pennsylvania Educational Improvement Tax Credit Program, will be used to continue their mentorship program. Volunteers from the community conduct creative arts workshops for students and teach different mediums of interest, make important connections and guide students toward achieving their goals. Programming also helps students build self-esteem and teaches positive outlets.

Since the pandemic, programming has moved to a virtual platform, but has not slowed them down. “We are busier than ever! Virtual classes and workshops have enabled us to provide a continuity of services with students that are transient and across a five-county radius,” says Pamela Martin, Executive Director, Expressive Path.

“We are thankful for the generosity of Ambler Savings Bank who has made it possible to offer options for learning that give students an outlet and keep them on the right track,” she continued.

“The educational programming that Expressive Path provides through art is important for today’s teens, and we are proud to continue our support,” said Roger Zacharia, President and CEO, Ambler Savings Bank.

Artwork from Expressive Path students is being displayed at the Bank’s Ambler Branch lobby during March and April.
